

WE SHARE GREAT NEWS WITH HAPPINESS

Coca-Cola Andina is listed for the second consecutive year in the Santiago Stock Exchange Sustainability Index (Dow Jones Sustainability Index, DJSI Chile).

This index is part of the family of Dow Jones Sustainability Indices and is composed of 26 companies listed on the Santiago Stock Exchange.

Santiago de Chile, Chile - September 11, 2017 – Coca-Cola Andina (Embotelladora Andina S.A., Santiago Stock Exchange: Andina-A, Andina-B; NYSE: AKO, AKO/B), the second-largest Coca-Cola bottler in South America and one of the three largest in Latin America, announced today that it was selected for the second consecutive year to be part of the family of the Dow Jones Sustainability Indices (Dow Jones Sustainability Index or "DJSI").

"We are proud to continue being part of this important family of indices, which recognizes company leadership in the sustainable management of the industry in which they operate, in aspects of corporate governance, transparency, risk management, supply chain, environmental management, talent attraction and development, and work with the community, among others," said Miguel Angel Peirano, Coca-Cola Andina's Chief Executive Officer.

The executive added that "the transverse effort we have made as a Company, to constantly improve in terms of sustainability through specific initiatives, is materialized in the ratification of Coca-Cola Andina as part of this index. Moreover, it is a reflection of the dedication and commitment of our team to develop sustainable business processes and consistently deliver value to our stakeholders and the communities that we are privileged to serve. Our future challenge is to continue strengthening our leadership, reinforcing our commitment to creating shared value by integrating economic, social and environmental issues. A detail of the Company's Sustainability Strategy can be found in our 2016 Sustainability Report, which also outlines the seven pillars on which it is based, presenting in each one of these, several Outstanding Cases which are the initiatives and projects that we've been developing".

The scopes in which Coca-Cola Andina achieved best performances this year were: code of business conduct, customer relations management processes, risk management, environmental management systems, supply chain management and employment practices, among others.

The 2016 Sustainability Report is available on the Company's website, which we invite you to access through the following link.
